Despite these precautions, and although we will do our best to protect your personal data, Socksfor1 cannot guarantee the security of information transmitted over the Internet or that unauthorized persons will not obtain access to personal data. In the event of an actual or suspected data breach, we have put in place procedures to deal with this and will notify you and any applicable regulator of a breach where required to do so.

7. Your rights

As a data subject, you have a number of rights in relation to your personal data. Below, we have described the various rights that you have, as well as how you can exercise them. These rights can be exercised at any time by contacting us – see the “Contact Details” section below.

Right of Access

You may, at any time, request access to the personal data that we hold that relates to you (you may have heard of this right being described as a "subject access request").

Please note that this right entitles you to receive a copy of the personal data that we hold about you. It is not a right to request personal data about other people, or a right to request specific documents from us that do not relate to your personal data.

Your right to rectification and erasure

You may, at any time, request that we correct personal data that we hold about you which you believe is incorrect or inaccurate. You may also ask us to erase personal data if you do not believe that we need to continue retaining it (you may have heard of this right described as the “right to be forgotten”).

Please note that we may ask you to verify any new data that you provide to us and may take our own steps to check that the new data you have supplied us with is right. Further, we are not always obliged to erase personal data when asked to do so; if for any reason we believe that we have a good legal reason to continue processing personal data that you ask us to erase we will tell you what that reason is at the time we respond to the request.

Your right to restrict processing

Where we process your personal data on the basis of a legitimate interest, you are entitled to ask us to stop processing it if you feel that our continuing to do so impacts on your fundamental rights and freedoms or if you feel that those legitimate interests are not valid.

You may also ask us to stop processing your personal data: (a) if you dispute the accuracy of that personal data and want us verify that data's accuracy; (b) where it has been established that our use of the data is unlawful but you do not want us to erase it; (c) where we no longer need to process your personal data (and would otherwise dispose of it) but you wish for us to continue storing it in order to enable you to establish, exercise or defend legal claims.

Please note that if for any reason we believe that we have a good legal reason to continue processing personal data that you ask us to stop processing, we will explain that reason, either at the time we first respond to the request or after we have had the opportunity to consider and investigate it.

Your right to portability

Under certain circumstances, where you wish to transfer certain personal data that we hold about you, which is processed by automated means, to a third party, you may write to us and ask us to provide it to you in a commonly used machine-readable format.

Your right to object to processing

You may object to processing of your personal data where we rely on legitimate interest for processing that personal data. We will comply with your request unless we have a compelling overriding legitimate interest for processing or we need to continue processing your personal data to establish, exercise or defend a legal claim.

Your right to withdraw consent

Where our processing of your data is on the basis of consent, you can withdraw this consent at any time. This would not affect the lawfulness of the processing based on consent prior to the withdrawal.

Your right to object to automated decision making and profiling

You have the right to be informed about the existence of any automated decision making and profiling of your personal data, and where appropriate, be provided with meaningful information about the logic involved, as well as the significance and the envisaged consequences of such processing that affects you.

Exercising your rights

When you write to us making a request to exercise your rights, we may ask for copies of relevant ID documents to help us to verify identity.

It will help us to process your request if you clearly state which right you wish to exercise, what personal data it is that is of particular concern to you and, where relevant, why it is that you are exercising it. The clearer and more specific the request, the faster and more efficiently we can deal with that request. If insufficient information is provided, then there may be a delay in actioning the request until additional information is provided (and where this is the case we will tell you).

Please note that all the rights mentioned in this section are not absolute and we may be entitled to refuse requests, wholly or partly, where exceptions under the applicable law apply. For example, we may refuse to comply with a request if it is manifestly unfounded or excessive.
